REFORM SLANDER.

GAIL HAMILTON'S FOURTH EXAMPLE.

The "Chicago Tribune" Broiled.

[From the N. Y. Tribune.]

THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE AND MR. BLAINE—ITS CHARGE THAT HE AND HIS FAMILY WERE ROMAN CATHOLICS—TRUTH OF THE MATTER—MORAL ASPECTS OF SUCH ASSERTIONS.

To the Editor of the Tribune.

SIR: The fourth portrait which I propose to hang in my Rogues' Gallery is that of The Chicago Tribune. I cannot give the exact date of the photograph, but it was when personal feeling was at high-water mark in 1876, and different members of the same political party were striving to make each his own candidate the nominee of the approaching Cincinnati convention. At that time The Chicago Tribune published the subjoined statement—published in its editorial columns as absolute truth, without qualification or question, thus putting its distinguished and, perhaps I should add, venerable editor, Mr. Joseph Medill, member of the late Civil Service commission, in the very foreground as the author, or at least the responsible indorser, of the statement. Here is what Mr. Medill published:

"Mr. Blaine was born and raised a Roman Catholic. His parents were Irish Catholics and decent people. His brothers and sisters are Catholics now. His excellent and amiable wife is one, and the children are being raised in that faith. Mr. J. G. Blaine alone of the whole family connection is not an adherent of the 'Mother Church.' But he belongs to no Christian denomination, and while not a Catholic can hardly be called a protestant. What faith he may finally die in cannot be predicated except by analogy, and a consideration of the depth and strength of a mother's religious inculcation on a child's mind and heart."

At the time of The Chicago Tribune's publication of that devout little morsel of religious biography Mr. Blaine was—Pheu! Quantum mutatus ab illo!—a prominent candidate for the nomination of the Cincinnati Convention. How far he was in advance of all other candidates may be judged from the fact that he entered the balloting with more than one-third of all the votes and considerably more than twice the number cast for any other candidate, and that during the seven ballots he received more than the number required for nomination. How far he was in advance of The Chicago Tribune's candidate may be judged by the fact that he entered the first ballot with nearly three times as many votes, and came out of the seventh and last ballot with more than sixteen times as many votes as that candidate.

This was a state of things hard to be borne. It would not only justify but require the most strenuous exertions on the part of The Chicago Tribune to bring the fortunes of its candidate abreast with those of its formidable rival. No one could blame it for any amount of honorable endeavor. There were immense odds to be overcome and the time was short. The religious element has already entered, and threatens still further entrance, as a powerful factor, into our electoral problem. Protestants have a deep distrust of Catholicism in respect of its assumed authority over civic affairs. Catholics hold not only their faith, but their polity, with a jealous tenacity. If Mr. Blaine were a Catholic, born and bred in that faith, rearing his children in it, and surrounded by its adherents, the fact could hardly fail to create a great objection in the minds of Protestants. If he were a renegade Catholic, it would be a serious objection in the minds of Catholics. If he were neither Protestant nor Catholic, lapsing through indifferentism from the faith in which he was reared, but embracing no other, both Catholic and Protestant would be likely to become disaffected.

A man's fitness for office is not to be determined by his creed, still less by that of his wife and children. In canvassing his claims, then, all discussion of his religious relations is impertinent. Discussing the religious faith of his family is impertinence of the lowest degree. I will, however, waive this point. I even admit that the civil sovereignty assumed by the Catholic church may give the color of right to call a man's religion in question. I will admit farther that if ever such intermeddling with the most secret and sacred relations of life be pardonable it is during the heat of a Presidential campaign. The arena is vast, the prize heroic, the contest fierce. In the glow of energy and eagerness men may sometimes be swept past the boundary line of courtesy without forfeiting their right to be named by the name which is above every name. A man's ecclesiastical affiliations are not to be hidden under a bushel, and if their promulgation make him odious to a large portion of the community, "see thou to that." If the public refuses to have a Catholic, or a Protestant, or an Infidel, or a Jew to reign over it, all the more has it the right to know whether a man be Catholic, Protestant, Infidel, or Jew.

At any rate the journalists started out on a steeple-chase after Mr. Blaine's religion. Up hill and down, over hedge and ditch, trampling through glebe and splashing through baptistry in their headlong dash across country, rode the bold huntsmen, madly trying to get on the track of that unlucky faith, and with a uniform want of success that argues anything but a keen scent for religion on the part of the pursuers. Indeed, Mr. Blaine himself could hardly fail to be surprised at learning what a devout churchman he had been. Any modest man, who has gone through life quietly saying his prayers and laying no claim to any more godliness than his neighbors, may well be startled at finding his devotions dogged by detectives and rung out on all the church-bells from Maine to California. If Mr. Blaine had ever adopted half the creeds attributed to him, he must have been what Kinglake declared Gladstone to have been, "a good man in the worst sense of the term."

But our Western reformer knew a more excellent way. It did not indeed discountenance the publication of impertinent private matters, but it rose superior to any attempt at ascertaining facts in those matters. While simpler souls were wasting strength in hunting up authorities throughout the country, the Chicago Tribune calmly sat down in its office and loved and made a lie. Moreover the facts when come at were not suited to its purpose, while those which it should manufacture could be warranted to fit. Accordingly, with upturned eyes of holy horror at the prisons of St. Louis, with such a heaven-directed glance over the distilleries of Kentucky as Samuel bestowed upon the elder Weller in the court-room, and with ill-concealed disdain toward these Innocents Abroad who were breaking their necks in a hunt for facts, the angel of the Reform Church at Chicago writes:

"Mr. Blaine was born and reared a Roman Catholic."

It so happens that Mr. Blaine was not born and reared a Roman Catholic, but so much the worse for Mr. Blaine. It is necessary for the advancement of reform that he should be; accordingly he is.

"His parents were Irish Catholics and decent people."

His parents were neither Irish nor Catholics, and before admitting that they were decent people I should like to know whether the definition of decency includes the Chicago Tribune. "Are ye looking at me now?" asked the puzzled and purloining customer of the squint-eyed salesman who had accused him. "Yes, I am." "Then ye saw me take it!" If the Chicago Tribune is "decent people" I indignantly deny that Mr. Blaine's parents were "decent people."

It is a matter however of public record, easily accessible to those interested in the facts, that Mr. Blaine's parents both belonged to old colonial families settled in Pennsylvania long anterior to the Revolution, in which struggle his ancestors on both sides bore an honorable, and not inconspicuous part. The whole Blaine family in all its branches were never anything else but Scotch Presbyterians. In this faith Mr. Blaine was himself reared, and his father before him, and all the generations of his ancestry. His mother was through life a Catholic, held in high esteem not only by her own church, but by the Protestant churches, and followed reverently to her honored grave not only by Catholic priests but by all the clergymen of the different Protestant denominations in the community where she was born, and where, after a sweet and pious life of threescore and ten, she sleeps with the sacred dead of her kindred and her blood. Mr. Blaine himself settled in Maine when a young man, and his Presbyterian faith and rearing naturally transferred him to the Congregational Church, of which he has been a member for nearly or quite twenty years. His "amiable and excellent wife," whom the Chicago Tribune, without qualification, declares to be "also a Catholic," was born in the New-England town where she lives, of a Puritan family that has eight generations of New England orthodoxy behind it, a family for which I have some right to speak, of whose character I have some reason to be proud, and of whose history I perhaps know as much as the honorable Joseph Medill, editor-in-chief of the Chicago Tribune and whilom commissioner of civil service reform.

I speak as a fool, but I am compelled by a knave. I mention these facts, which ought not to be so much as named among us, simply to show the weapons which the Chicago Tribune wields in the purification of the civil service. Without even paying to truth the tribute of probability; without blenching at the thought that thousands will instantly detect its mendacity, it fabricates and launches its falsehoods with portentous calmness. It knows well that the remote community and the thousands everywhere who will see its falseness and discern its motives are people who would never be won away from Mr. Blaine or won over to its own candidate, while those who do not recognize its falsehoods might be influenced by them to marshal themselves under its banner. Moreover, one cannot disclaim Catholicism as one claims dishonesty. Any denial of such assertions would carry somewhat of odium to a large number of interested partisans in a time of great political excitement. So that it seemed highly probable that a cool, brave, well-arranged series of simple, categorical fabrications might hinder the advance of Mr. Blaine without marring the fortunes of its own candidate.

The Chicago Tribune came up [illegible] to the emergency, and issued the series. "The delicate domestic compliment" diffuses an air of candor over the whole paragraph, while the touch of sentiment wherewith the crescendo of the closing paragraph is winged reveals a master hand. For the [illegible] rampaging over the God-forsaken wastes outside of all churches, it can say little, but, being a magnanimous foe, it will not thrust his family also into that outer darkness. Nay, this eminent Purist, over-generous to the erring, holds out the hope that the "amiable and excellent wife" and the "religious mother" may between them, at the last gasp, lug even the miscreant himself through the pearly gates—though, let Protestant be warned, the gates will most likely be opened by a Catholic key.

Before this spectacle of falsehood [illegible], how coarse and clumsy seems ordinary abuse by men who are not reformers! Now, I admit that smuggling silks across the border or distilling midnight whisky, or even taking part in a convention—in short, any fraud whatever upon the revenue of the county—is harmless and honest compared to the ingenious, elaborate, and malignant mendacity of the Chicago Tribune. The silk-and-whisky thief steals money from a rich, remote, intangible corporation called the Government. He does not mean harm to any one else, only benefit to himself. And the harm which he does is harm to property and of a definite valuation. But the civil service reformer deliberates a definite and specific harm, a harm to reputation, a harm to a certain designated man, a harm of vast and incalculable extent, and in carrying out this design, he flings truth and honesty to the winds. The organ of reform is willing to strengthen its cause, not by showing the ability, and availability of its candidate, but by wantonly, willfully, and with malice aforethought, uttering slanders against a rival candidate.

A great point will be gained when revenue theft is prevented; but a greater will be gained when the organs of reform shall have risen to the level of thieves' honor, and cease their busy slanders of the party whose banner they borrow only to befoul, and of the faith which they profess only to profane.

GAIL HAMILTON.

The true process of manufacturing artificial butter is explained by Dr. H. A. Mott, Jr., in a paper read before the American Chemical Society. The principal points in the manufacture are the extraction of the oil from animal fat at a low temperature, not over one hundred and twenty-four degrees Fahrenheit, and the conversion of this oil into butter by churning it with a considerable proportion of sour milk. Exquisite cleanliness is necessary to the operation, and in warm climates the artificial butter cannot profitably be made in July and August. Dr. Mott estimates that an establishment capable of producing five hundred pounds daily could be fitted up for about twenty-five hundred dollars, and carried on with a capital of six thousand two hundred and fifty dollars.

A surgical operation which was recently performed successfully in Paris has enabled French physiologists to observe the processes of digestion by actually looking into the stomach of the patient. Heretofore, most of the knowledge which physicians have had of the digestive operations was derived from observations made upon a Canadian trapper, named St. Martin, whose stomach was permanently opened to view by a gunshot wound. A study of the case of the Paris patient shows that milk promotes digestion; and that at the end of four hours after food is taken, the stomach is usually empty, but that hunger is not felt until two hours later.

A young Indian girl who had curiously watched the process of marking barrel-heads in a flouring-mill in Winona, Minn., stole in one day, and taking possession of the stencils, ornamented her blanket with the words, "Ellsworth's Choice," and paraded the streets in great delight, but, to the disgust of Mr. Ellsworth, who is a bachelor and had made no such choice.

There are girls who will visit a ball-room and waltz, sweetly around for ten miles or more, who will make an awful face if requested to step three feet and hang up a dish cloth.—Chicago Journal.

GOD'S CONSTANT VISITATIONS.—Men talk of the visitation of God as if it was something that was extraordinary and happened very seldom, and when it came only brought evil, harm and sorrow. If a man lives on in health, they say he lives by the strength of his constitution; if he drops down dead, they say he died by "the visitation of God." If the corn crops go on all right and safe, they think that quite natural—the effect of the soil and their own skill in farming and gardening. But if there comes a hail storm or a blight, and spoils it all and brings famine, they call it at once "a visitation of God." My friends, do you think God "visits" the earth or you only to harm you? I tell you that every blade of grass grows by the "visitation of God." I tell you that every healthy breath you ever draw, every cheerful hour you ever spend, every good crop you ever housed safely, came to you by the "visitation of God." I tell you that every sensible thought or plan that ever came into your heads, every loving, honest, manly, womanly feeling that ever rose in your hearts, God "visited" you to put it there. If God's spirit had not given it, you would never have got it yourselves.

It is as true as gospel that the better looking a woman is the less trouble she will have to get her trunks past the custom house officials.

If a man is passionate, malicious, resentful, sullen, moody or morose, after his conversion as before it, what is he converted from or to?

Speak the truth, yield not to anger, give when asked, of the little thou hast, by these three terms thou shalt go near the gods.—Buddha.

Colonel S. S. Taylor of Cairo, Ill., has carried in his valise for many years when traveling, a rope ladder and a thick pair of gloves. At the burning of the Southern Hotel at St. Louis, where he was a guest, the ladder and gloves saved his life.

"Some confounded idiot has put that pen where I can't find it!" growled a man the other day, as he searched about the desk. "Ah, um, yes! I thought so!" he exclaimed, in a lower key, as he took the article from behind his ear.

An Indian girl at Vassar College writes to her parents: "This is the most stylish [illegible] of a boarding school I ever tumbled to. I eat four times a day if I want to, and get a fair back at the hash every time."

Another triumph for blue glass. On last Saturday a laboring man who had been out of work all winter and whose treasury was reduced to the last two dollar bill, put two panes of blue glass in his kitchen window, and that afternoon his wife found $3.87 in a broken nosed teapot in the cupboard.

RISE IN CORN. The war in Europe, it would seem, is to be of great benefit to this country and particularly to the farmers. It has already carried up the price of grain, especially corn, which has advanced nearly twenty-five cents per bushel, with every prospect of its going higher. Farmers in New England should take advantage of this case and put in a large amount of corn. If you have not sufficient manure, we advise you to buy the Stockbridge Corn Fertilizer which has produced at small cost from seventy-five to one hundred bushels per acre, and which has the merit that it is quickly available, and corn may be planted with it as late as the first of June, with a certainty of getting a good crop before the frost comes. We understand the manufacturers have made such arrangements that they can fill orders at a few hours' notice. Give it a trial now that the price of corn offers such inducements.

The Clyde Times says that a little three-year-old Clyde girl, in repeating her prayers to her mother every night, insists on praying to be made a "good Episcopalian Republican."

A little Kentucky boy said to his mother, the other morning: "Ma, I had the bulliest, tallest dream, last night, you ever saw. I dreamt that I wouldn't go to school, and that you went out in the yard and cut a great long switch, but just as you was going to give me an awful dressin' the world came to an end." Didn't I get out of it easy, though.

Lieutenant Smith of the United States Engineer Corps, has made a report to the Chief of Engineers upon the practicability of a canal across Florida, with reference to constructing a reservoir upon the summit level. He thinks that the amount of water available from infiltration and from the rains would be much more than the quantity required for the canal.

M. de Beaumont, the President of the Geographical Society of Geneva, proposes that longitude instead of being reckoned from Greenwich, Paris, Ferro, or Washington, as at present, shall be reckoned from an initial meridian passing through Behring's Strait, between North America and Asia.

[illegible] She is shot in both [illegible] Her right arm was shot [illegible] whole charge of buck shot which first struck the [illegible] and [illegible] struck her full in the face [illegible] with chips of lead and burnt powder She was struck in the face by some brutal hand which has blackened and disfigured it in a fearful manner She was also shot in the leg below the knee, and is now lying prostrate and helpless in an infant and nothing but the tenderest care and best surgical aid can save her arm and precious life Her father is still alive, but suffering intensely yet we have some hope of his final recovery The house is being guarded by a few faithful friends and relatives but we do not know at what hour the savage barbarians may renew the attack You can do us all no more good at present than to lay the enormities of the [illegible] before the people of Washington and especially the President

To the above was added the following postscript in the handwriting of Mrs Chisolm Our son this heroic little Johnnie was shot to death because he persisted in getting before his father for his defense

Several weeks ago a Boston newspaper berated us roundly for calling the public attention to the gathering hints that the Matthews-Foster bargain included support of Southern subsidy schemes The article copied elsewhere appeared in the New York Times on the day of the President's visit to that city and clearly indicates that others are beginning to take interest in the matter

The New Orleans Democrat asserts that the President used these words to one of its editors in Washington two weeks ago "My purpose sir is to completely rid the politics of your State of the alien element" "Alien" is a queer word in this connection —N Y [illegible]

THE PRESIDENT AND THE SUBSIDY SYSTEM

[From the N Y Times]

For the honor of the President and the good of the country it is to be hoped that the reports current in the South and South west imputing to the Administration a willingness to assist in various schemes of internal improvement are either inventions pure and simple, or such gross exaggerations as to be essentially untrue One of these reports purports to narrate [illegible] an interview with the President, in the course of which he committed himself to the [illegible] of promoting it [illegible] the Texas Pacific [illegible]

We repeat that for the President's sake we trust these stories do him [illegible]

The [illegible] approved by the [illegible] of [illegible] All kinds of Southern [illegible] are [illegible] the subsidies [illegible] the President [illegible] the Texas Pacific Road and the worthless [illegible] roads which are to be treated as branches The journals which [illegible] the Republican Party while calling [illegible] the President's representatives [illegible] by him or by friends [illegible] speak of them as part of the price to be paid for forbearance Journals of a different class which hail in a more general spirit what the President has done [illegible] to Government expenditure or guarantees for local improvements [illegible] the rewards which the Administration will [illegible] pay for Southern aid [illegible] or implied which according to the feeling cherished at the South, exists between itself and the President tends to mitigate Northern hostility On the contrary its effect is to strengthen the suspicion that, in spite of denials, some understanding was in the first instance established whereby the South is to be peculiarly benefited Such a feeling is at this time especially undesirable With a sincere desire for the obliteration of sectional animosities, the North will not allow the South to dictate terms The latter has had its own way in Louisiana and South Carolina and for that reason, if for no other, it need to be taught that there is a limit to its demands It must not expect to grow rich at the public expense

Apart from other considerations, it is difficult to believe that in the present condition of financial and international affairs the President can venture to encourage projects that would seriously tax the strength of the national credit A political experiment is in progress at the South That is quite enough for the time He would indeed be rash who, to win Southern good will should be willing to increase the fiscal burdens of the country, and to strain still further its credit, when all its resources are required to fulfil the pledges which it has given to the world To acquire the means of making the resumption of specie payments possible, and to re-establish the confidence which alone can render resumption permanent, the manifold interests of the Treasury must be cherished with a care to which the jobbers of the Texas-Pacific Railroad are indifferent. Generous impulses cannot be suffered to outweigh the obligations of duty If the President lack explicit information as to the disturbing forces which are at work in the financial world and their possible effect upon the revenue and credits of the United States, he may usefully seek it during his present visit He will then realize more clearly the risks inseparable from any attempt to bribe the South into good humor by responding favorably to its call for subsidies

THE NEW PENSION DISTRICT —A Washington special says —Senator Blaine has strongly urged upon the Interior Department that Portland should be made the paying centre of the new pension district composed of Maine New Hampshire and Vermont He has pointed out the fact that Maine has as many if not more names on the pension rolls than New Hampshire and Vermont together, and that it is really further from Portland to the eastern side of the consolidated district than to the western side, the St Croix and Aroostook being more remote than Lake Champlain The Senator further has shown that five trunk lines of rail start from Portland and run through New Hampshire two of them reaching Vermont Concord is not on any of these lines and mail matter from Concord to Maine and the reverse practically goes through Boston As compared with Concord Portland is at least one full day nearer on an average to the [illegible] of the consolidated district

TO ALL particularly invalids, spring is a trying season Indications of sickness should at once be attended to Fatal diseases may be caused by allowing the bowels to become constipated, and the system to remain in a disordered condition until the disorder has time to develop itself An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, is an old and truthful saying Therefore, we advise all who are troubled with the complaints now very prevalent—headache indigestion disordered liver, want of appetite nausea, or feverish skin to take without delay, Schenck's Mandrake Pills We know of no remedy so harmless and decisive in its action It at once strikes at the root of the disease and produces a healthy tone to the system People never need suffer from any disease arising from a disordered condition of the liver if they would take this excellent medicine when they feel the first indications of the malady Families leaving home for the summer months should take three or four boxes of these pills with them. They have an almost instantaneous effect. They will relieve the patient of headache in one or two hours, and will rapidly cleanse the liver of surrounding bile, and will effectually prevent a bilious attack They are sold by all druggists codlm myl

EVEN BOSTON CONSERVATISM SHOCKED

The Kemper-county tragedy in Mississippi numbers two additional victims, Judge Chisolm and his heroic daughter. The story of this affair reads more like a narrative of savage Indian feuds than like a statement of something occurring in a community reputed civilized and apt to talk about its "chivalry."

The wife and son of the Judge, assisted by a citizen who had a spark of courage, carried the Judge unconscious back to his home across the common. On the way a body of men came up, and were about to fire at the Judge, but were prevented by the entreaties of Cornelia that they would not mutilate his dead body. Toward evening the mob rode out of town. Judge Chisolm recovered consciousness. He said to the Tribune correspondent: "I want to live for the dearest wife in the world, for my children, and for my country. I am dying for my country." Indeed, he had a wife and children worth living for. The daughter was as modest and patient as she had shown herself brave. Their home was obviously the abode of refinement and culture uncommon in that section, books, pictures and evidences of taste abounding. Last Sunday the Judge died of his wounds, and day before yesterday the heroic Cornelia also died.

This is a terrible story of life in an American State. It seems improbable that politics had nothing to do with it, although it is possible that other considerations were influential. All of one party were Democrats, all of the other were Republicans. The leaders of the mob which assailed the jail were brothers, sons and nephews of the murdered Gully. The correspondent from whom we have quoted says that he did not hear from a single man, officer or citizen, any intention expressed to aid in bringing the murderers to justice, or even the hope that they will be arrested. The Governor of the State was there at the same time, but up to this time he has done nothing to vindicate the law. Such is life in Mississippi! And yet we believe there are associations there to encourage immigration. They will have to offer stronger inducements than any prospect of material prosperity they can promise to persuade men who respect the law and love peace and security to take up their abode among a people who condone such outrages.

THE FRENCH CRISIS.

[From the New York Herald.]

Ultramontane agitation will not be fruitless certainly if it forces the reorganization of the Ministry in France; but it is very likely to prove that it might better be fruitless so far as touches the real interests of the Church, than to secure such a victory; for the necessary consequence must be a Ministry more in sympathy with the ideas of the Left or a recurrence to elementary difficulties that the clergy should especially desire to avoid. On the 4th instant the Assembly by an overwhelming vote, authorized the Government to "use the legal means at its disposal" for the repression of the clerical demonstrations, which had gone to such lengths that they not only threatened the tranquility of the country, but bade fair by their declarations as to Rome to compromise the relations of France with the Government of Italy. There was no doubt when the vote was cast that it expressed the intention of the House to rebuke the spirit that inspired these disturbances and to furnish the Government a required moral support for energetic action; but the phraseology of the order of the day rather opened a new issue than determined the one already open. The authorization for the Government to "use the legal means at its disposal" necessarily provoked the inquiry, What are the legal means at the disposal of the Government for dealing with ecclesiastics who seem to exceed the limits of their functions and provoke political agitation? This was the ground for a battle between the Republicans, who demanded that the Government should not palter with the evil, and those supporters of the agitation whom it has been said the Marshal-President does not regard with the greatest aversion. In this conflict, teased by the Republicans and taken to task by the President, M. Simon has found that it was a bitter glory to hold a pre-eminence into which the logic of circumstances had thrust him to the exclusion of the more legitimate head of the dominant party, and has resigned, the resignation being promptly accepted. As usual, the fall of the Ministry was felt on the Bourse, and of course the city was full of rumors of clerical and Orleanist intrigues. The resignation of a French Ministry unaccompanied by general consternation, an agitated Bourse and startling rumors would be unprecedented. Nothing certain is known as to M. Simon's successor, but the crisis is still to be regarded as grave, and the Left is preparing to make the most of it.

THE NEW POLICY IN SOUTH CAROLINA. The Boston Advertiser's Washington special says: The first election held in South Carolina since Hampton became Governor occurred on Monday in Fairfield county, a Republican stronghold. The Democrats carried the county and elected two members of the Legislature by over twelve hundred majority. The colored voters kept away from the polls. The county last fall elected two Republicans to represent them in the Legislature, and they were members of the Mackey house. When the two Legislatures came together the Democrats refused to admit these two Republicans unless they would apologize openly and beg pardon for acting with the Mackey Legislature. Refusing to do this, they were denied admission, and a new election was ordered to fill their seats. The result is, two Democrats have been returned.

Another Washington despatch says:—One of the Professors of the University of South Carolina, who is here, has received information from Columbia that the Legislature has made no appropriation to defray the expenses of the University this year. The cost of maintaining the institution is about $20,000 annually. This University, which has educated a large number of colored persons, will now have to close.

The Washington Evening Star, which has supported the President's Southern policy, in discussing editorially the assassination of the Chisolm family in Mississippi by a Democratic mob, says:—"One thing, however, is as certain as the decree of fate itself, and that is that if similar butcheries continue to occur in the South, and the murderers allowed to go unwhipped of justice, as they quite invariably are, a universal protest will be raised in the North against the persecution of men in the South for opinion's sake. The honor of the South and of the whole nation demands the punishment of political assassins. Senators Gordon and Lamar have something at stake, if officials of the Gov. Stone stamp have not, in seeing that the President's Southern policy is not made odious throughout the North and West by the failure to punish the guilty persons in these partisan murders."

EX-PRESIDENT GRANT.

HIS DEPARTURE FOR EUROPE—DEMONSTRATIONS IN HIS HONOR.

On Thursday morning in Philadelphia, General Grant took breakfast with Gov. Hartranft, Senator Cameron, Col. Fred Grant, Gen. Sherman and Hamilton Fish, after which he was waited upon by the Mayor and a committee of the Council, and escorted to Chestnut Street Wharf, where the steamer Twilight was waiting to make a short excursion up the river with the ex-President and a number of invited guests. A large crowd of people assembled. Gen. Grant was loudly cheered on his arrival. As the steamer left the wharf the people grew very enthusiastic and cheered and waved their handkerchiefs. The shipping generally and ferry boats, steam tugs, &c., all saluted the excursion party.

In passing Kaighen's Point, a salute of twenty-one guns was fired from the old frigate Constitution. Reaching Gloucester the boat was saluted by the Quaker City Yacht Club, who had turned out in their innumerable small sailing craft. Passing League Island, the sailors of the United States frigate St. Louis dressed the ship, and the Marine Corps paraded on the deck of the Monitor. On arriving at Cramp's ship-yard, where the Russian corvette Craysser is lying, that vessel ran up the American flag and fired a salute of 21 guns. After proceeding a short distance up river the party steamed down again, being convoyed by a number of private tugs and steamers with excursionists, all seeking to do honor to the ex-President. At Newcastle General Grant was transferred to the steamship Indiana, in which vessel he sails to Liverpool.

The revenue cutter Hamilton, which had been placed at the disposal of Gen. Grant by President Hayes, was used for carrying Mrs. Grant and a number of personal friends down the river. The vessel was very handsomely decorated. In passing the Navy Yard the Hamilton was saluted from the receiving ship.

"Mrs. Grant joins me in thanks to you and Mrs. Hayes for your kind message, received on board this steamer after pushing out of the wharf. We unite in returning our cordial greetings and in expressing our best wishes for your health, happiness and success in your most responsible position. Hoping to return to my country to find it prosperous in business, and with cordial feelings restored between all sections, I subscribe myself truly yours,

"BARBARIANS."

(From the Lewiston Journal.)

The account of the brutal assault on Judge Chisolm and his daughter by a Mississippi mob, as already published by us, were bad enough. But it gives a much deeper sense of the intensity of hatred and the utter barbarism of the community to know that the mangled and hopelessly wounded father was compelled to die behind barricaded windows to prevent his end from being hastened by shots from assassins impatient at his lingering hold upon life, and that the heroic young girl who risked her life to save her father's was suffered to perish in agony from a slight wound because no surgeon was willing or dared go to the house to dress it. A community may be hurried into cruelty and violence by passion, but such cold-blooded and guilty vindictiveness as this could only exist among barbarians. Such outrages in the past have been ascribed to the "weakness and wickedness of carpet-bag rule." But Mississippi has been under Democratic rule for nearly two years, and this fault or excuse can't be used now. Gov. Stone may as well understand that the country is waiting to see whether he will do anything to bring the leaders of this massacre to justice.

Lynchburg, Va., May 17, 1877.

To the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Washington:

Deputy Marshal I. C. Conway at Bristol informs me by telegraph this morning that Deputy Marshal Austin and three others have been shot in Lee county while in the discharge of their duty. One is mortally wounded. I trust you will take some steps to secure the arrest and punishment of the murderers. I have telegraphed to Governor Kemper, requesting his aid.

J. H. RIVES,
Collector 5th District, Virginia.

Mr. Rogers, acting Commissioner of Internal Revenue, has referred the telegram from Collector Rives at Lynchburg, Va., giving the account of the assault upon and the shooting of United States officials in the discharge of their duty to the Attorney General, who will issue instructions for the prompt prosecution of such offenders. The outrages create a profound sensation at the Internal Revenue office, and the subject, in all probability, will be considered at the next Cabinet meeting, with a view to the employment of troops to assist the revenue authorities in the performance of their duties, and for their protection against outrages.

COMPETENCY OF DRUGGISTS AND APOTHECARIES. The Commission on Pharmacy met Tuesday afternoon last, at the Falmouth Hotel, Portland, for the purpose of examining and receiving applications for registration, from apothecaries. Of the forty-eight applications for registration, presented from those in the apothecary business at the time of the passage of the Pharmacy law, forty-two were granted registration, having shown satisfactory evidence of competency through long service and testimony of physicians as to their qualifications for the business. Three whose physicians' vouchers appeared good, but whose short period of service did not seem to warrant the Commissioners in issuing their certificates without questioning, were cited before the Board to show their competency by examination, and three were laid over for further consideration at the next meeting. Five applicants for examination to prove competency, presented themselves, of whom four were passed, and one was unsuccessful. The sessions of the Commission extended late into Tuesday evening and through Wednesday. The next meeting will be held at Bangor, in the Bangor House, Tuesday, May 22d, at 9 A. M.

UNSUSPECTED PUNCH. One incident, which almost everybody enjoyed, occurred in the middle of the Chamber of Commerce dinner, Monday night, when, as usual on such occasions, a Roman punch was served. Wine glasses had been placed at President Hayes' and William E. Dodge's plates, but neither had permitted them to be filled. The President regaled himself on a bottle of imported German seltzer.—But when the Roman punch was served, evidently mistaking it for water ice, both gentlemen eagerly partook of it, seeming unconscious of the presence of Jamaica rum among its ingredients.—N. Y. Tribune.

We have to confess that the fair promises of peace and good-will made by the South contingent upon the removal of the troops from South Carolina and Louisiana do not seem to be realized. On the contrary, the exact reverse is the order of things.—Boston Commonwealth.

HARD TIMES IN CALIFORNIA.—A letter writer says: People East who have money could not do better than to come out here in order to take advantage of the reckless way in which all kinds of property is sold. Valuable farms and ranches can now be had for one-twentieth of their value, and city property is for sale at prices which would have seemed ridiculous a few years back. The depression is so great that it cannot last much longer in this way. But the suffering is intolerable, and bad as times have been in the east, they are as naught compared with the disaster which has overtaken the residents of the Pacific coast. Thousands are going to Arizona, where there is said to be gold for the digging; and the agricultural population will be increased, although at present agriculture is the most depressed industry we have. Word was sent to John McCullough, of New York, that there is no use in his returning to the Pacific coast, and that his theatre will have to be closed.—This is the second year of drought since the settlement of California.

NEW MAGAZINES.

ECLECTIC MAGAZINE. The June number completes the twenty-fifth volume (new series) of the work, and the index which it contains exhibits with a fulness which the contents of a single number cannot exhibit, the scope, and interest, and value of this sterling magazine. The contents of the June number are as follows:—On the Habits of Ants, by Sir John Lubbock; Lieut. Cameron's Journey Across Africa; The French Army in 1877; Charles Young, the Actor; Loved and Lost; The Radiometer and its Lessons, by Dr. W. B. Carpenter; Life of a Scotch Naturalist; three chapters of Mrs. Oliphant's novel, Young Musgrave; Mussulman Homes; Carnival Song of Lorenzo de Medicis; Harriet Martineau; The Coming Papal Conclave; Deronda's Mother; Mr. Ruskin's Will; Uncommon Pets; and The Beggar. The number also contains a fine steel portrait of Adelaide Proctor, the poetess, which is accompanied with a brief sketch of her life, and the usual Editorial Department.

SCRIBNER for June is more cosmopolitan than usual, containing (in story, essay and travel) sketches of life in France, Spain, Turkey, Syria, Russia, Great Britain and America. Among the so-called "timely" papers may be mentioned a descriptive criticism of the statue of Liberty Enlightening the World, by Charles de Kalb, with sketch and portrait of the sculptor Bartholdi, and engravings of the statue and of other works by the same hand; also Damascus by Diligence, by an ex-Consul, including a discussion of the future of Syria under Moslem rule; How it was Done in Great Britain, the narrative of British civil service reform, by Edward O. Graves, one of the civil service examiners under President Grant; A State Ball in Constantinople; Village Sanitary Work, the third of Col. Waring's papers of practical suggestions,—this month about sewage, ventilation, earth closets, etc. There is also a profusely illustrated paper on Croton Water, by W. H. Rideing, with some exciting incidents of hair-breadth escapes from drowning in the aqueduct—probably the completest description of the great aqueduct ever written. The recent discussion of the merits of the Russian novelist, Tourgueneff, receives an accession in a biographical sketch by Boyesen, with portrait. Charles Dudley Warner has a study of character in his obituary notice of the hero of My Summer in a Garden, Calvin the cat. Other papers are Benjamin Disraeli, by E. S. Nadal; The Traditional Music of the Spanish Pyrenees, by Nena Sturgis; Pond Life, by Mrs. Herrick (a study from the microscope); The Immortality of the Soul, an attempt at a Socratic dialogue, by Edward Payson; and an illustrated paper on Horses. Dr Holland's Nicholas Minturn is continued and Nicholas's plans for dealing with dead-beats are put into practice. Mrs. Burnett has a short story of Franco-American life in Paris, entitled Le Monsieur de la Petite Dame. The poetry of the number is contributed by Mrs. Thaxter, Mrs. Piatt, Mrs. Elizabeth Akers Allen, Charles T. Dazey, The Old Cabinet, and Bric-a-Brac, the latter department containing among the humorous verse a dainty little poem entitled The War of the Roses. Dr. Holland discusses in his Topics of the Time, The Future of New York, Houses and Things, and The Changes in Preaching, and pays a high tribute to the late Edward Seymour of the Scribner firm.

ST. NICHOLAS is as bright as the June sunshine, and full of June's breeziness and effect. The frontispiece is a fine picture of A June Morning, and at the close of the number Prof. Proctor shows The Stars in June, while between these two we find many of the delightful scenes with which every June day is filled. There is a dainty picture on one page of a little girl in gown and sun bonnet, demurely reading her fortune from the daisy-leaves, and on another, a barefoot boy is enjoying gay summer frolics with a frisky colt. The Green House with Gold Nails—so beautifully portrayed—is one of June's special treasures. Wild Mice begin their June time travels along their numberless little paths through the fields. The opening story of Frank is a well told and well illustrated account of a boy's heroism in a terrible adventure; the concluding chapter of the excellent serial Pattikin's House has a superb picture of a fire, by Thomas Moran; the story of The Mother in the Desert" is delightfully told by Susan Coolidge; and the curious old time procession of The Child Bishop of Salisbury on St. Nicholas Day is well set forth in Mr. Eggleston's article and Mr. Eytinge's picture. The installment of His Own Master is unusually long, and contains three beautiful pictures; and the story of Spray is illustrated with a remarkable life-like portrait of the wise little black-and-tan. The Peterkin's Tea Party is a most interesting and amusing occasion. Tommy's Cousin is a very funny story, with even funnier pictures by Church; Annetta Plummer's Diary—a remarkable journal—is revealed to us by Abby Morton Diaz; and Joel Stacy's record of The Naughty Little Egyptian is touching and comical.

THE ATLANTIC for June is an extremely readable number. Mr. Edward H. Knight's second article on Crude and Curious Inventions is devoted almost wholly to drums, and contains more than thirty illustrations of the primitive instruments of that nature used by the Asiatics and Africans. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes contributes one of his inimitable society poems, entitled The First Fan, in which he narrates the origin of the fan. Wa-ha-toy-a; or, Before the Graders, by H. H., is a picturesque description of an excursion to the mountains and Mexican villages of Southern Colorado. The South Carolinian who has in previous numbers photographed so unsparingly the politics and morals of his native State gives a clear and graphic picture of South Carolina society and its caste divisions, which the events and changes of the last sixteen years have modified but by no means abolished. Charles Francis Adams, Jr., concludes his paper on The May-Pole of Merrymount with an entertaining account of Captain Miles Standish's expedition against Morton, in the days when all the settlements on Boston Bay did not number fifty souls; and Albert G. Browne, Jr., contributes The Ward of the Three Guardians, a story of frontier life and experience in Utah nineteen years ago. A critical essay on Fitz-Greene Halleck, from the pen of George Parsons Lathrop, appears almost simultaneously with the erection of the poet's statue in Central Park, New York, and will be read with especial interest. Mr. Edward Fitzgerald's Translations, are the subject of another critical paper by T. S. Perry. In addition to Dr. Holmes' sprightly poem there are poems by Bayard Taylor, R. H. Stoddard and Marian Douglas.

A GENUINE SLAVE BAND,

IN

They are genuine colored people, under the leadership of ANDREW SHEPPARD, [illegible] years a slave, formerly the property of Gen. Robert E. Lee, at Arlington, Va., emancipated by Abraham Lincoln's Great Proclamation of Freedom. These Singers make no pretensions to musical abilities, they being unable to read or write. All having been slaves, they give the truest and best representation of slave life on the Old Plantation.

Solos, Sacred Songs of the Old Plantation, which for melody and harmony are unsurpassed.

Organized by Rev. Father Hawley, City Missionary, in the City of Hartford, Ct., for over 20 years.

CONCERT.

The Artistes Quartette.

I have the pleasure of announcing to the citizens of Bangor and vicinity, one GRAND CONCERT,

IN NOROMBEGA HALL,

Tuesday, May 22d, 1877,

by the POPULAR ARTISTE QUARTETTE, of Boston, consisting of

MRS. G. H. OAKES. Mrs. Oakes' voice is a mezzo soprano of exquisite texture, and as a teacher as well as vocalist, her artistic position cannot be gainsayed.

MRS. FLORA E. BARRY. It is hardly necessary to add anything concerning Mrs. Barry, who is so favorably known to a Bangor audience. She is contralto at King's Chapel.

MISS JULIA A. WELLS. Miss Wells is to the Quartette what the sub-bass is to the Organ—possessing a remarkably deep and powerful voice. She is contralto at Rev. Dr. Ware's Church, Arlington St.

The Quartette will be assisted by

MR. WALTER EMERSON, the young but already famous cornet soloist, and

MR. J. P. WESTON, Accompanist and Musical Director.

The above although a comparatively new organization, have met with very flattering success in Boston and the West, during the winter just past, and their appearance here should be greeted by a full house.

Tickets at popular prices—Secured seats, 35 and 50 cts., according to location.

Sale of tickets will commence at 7 o'clock Saturday morning at the Bangor News Depot, No. 6, Kenduskeag Bridge.

Disraeli's Engineering Successful.

ANOTHER APPALLING MASSACRE.

Inhuman Barbarity of the Turks.

Terrible Scenes—Awful Outrages.

Disraeli Preparing to Precipitate England into War with Russia

NEW YORK, May 18. The Sun's London special dated last night, says the absorbing interest in Russian operations is for the moment transferred to the diplomatic world. Emboldened by his triumph in Parliament and certain of the support from the Nation Disraeli is believed to be preparing to precipitate England, joined by Austria, into conflict with Russia. Diplomatic circles confess England's participation is a foregone conclusion. Extraordinary preparations in the armament of both land and naval forces are reported in all parts of the Kingdom.

The Merchants Want War

LONDON, May 18. The tone of the majority of the London and Provincial press is outspoken for instant intervention upon almost any pretext. War measures are regarded with enthusiasm among the great body of merchants. In English homes, even among the lower ranks, a feeling of intense hostility against Russia is marked. The Russian Ambassador has gone home to warn the Czar of the impending danger. Couriers follow him in rapid succession with reports of the situation.

Russians Retreating—Moving Generally.

A large force of Circassian emigrants with great stores of arms and ammunition have been shipped from the Bosphorus for a point on the Black Sea coast. The expedition will be protected by two iron clad frigates.

The Circassian Coast.

The Telegraph's Batoum correspondent says men and rifles are being rapidly embarked for the Circassian coast from this garrison, which is now strong enough not to fear the Russian columns recently defeated with such terrible loss.

The Telegraph's Vienna despatch has the following: Abdul Kerim Pasha asserts that the Danubian fortresses are victualled for a year. It is reported from Kragora that Prince Milan's uncle has left with an autograph letter from the Prince to the Grand Duke Nicholas. According to this report Servia is ready to take the field with 40,000 men on condition that Russia pays the expenses of the undertaking.

More Turkish Barbarity—Massacre and Outrage.

BUCHAREST, May 18. Special to N. Y. Telegram—In the Turkish village of [illegible] there is quite a Christian element, [illegible] subordinate in numbers to the Turks. On the night of the 10th the latter made a concerted general attack upon the Christians. Scenes of frightful atrocity were presented. [illegible] males were put indiscriminately to the sword, many of the [illegible] women shared the same fate and the younger ones were brutally outraged. The cries of the victims were distinctly heard by outposts of the Roumanian army. This is further corroborated by the reports of two Bulgarians who managed to escape by crossing the Danube. Their account of the outrage and murder of old and young and the cruel deaths inflicted is horrible beyond measure. The bombardment of the town of Oltenitza by the Russians which has been going on ten days, seems utterly ineffective.

THE FRENCH POLITICAL CRISIS.

A New Ministry Formed.

McMahon's Message.

THE CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES PROROGUED.

On the Verge of a Revolution.

The Excitement Over the Ministerial Crisis.

LONDON, May 18. The Times Paris despatch says the excitement quieted Wednesday night by the report that the project of forming a Broglie Cabinet was abandoned. Thursday morning McMahon's immediate followers affected to regard the meeting of the Left at the Grand Hotel as a challenge to the Marshal. Conciliatory [illegible] were again abandoned. Duke de Broglie held a crowded reception Wednesday night, [illegible] which has been attempted of the Marshal's [illegible] the Republican Cabinet could continue no longer.

The Opinion of Europe

The Duke de Cases received all the Ambassadors yesterday. He found among them a most unfavorable impression. Not one approved what had passed, although some perhaps professed little sympathy for the Republican system. On all hands it was felt certain that public opinion of Europe would be painfully struck.

The Broglie Ministry

The Times correspondent shows that the Broglie Ministry was appointed in fulfillment of a threat by McMahon that if the left passed their order of the day which they did adopt yesterday, declaring that the Chamber will only place confidence in a Cabinet free to and resolved to govern in accordance with Republican principles which alone can secure order and prosperity, he would immediately form a Ministry from the Right.

The Chamber Prorogued

PARIS, May 19—Noon. Better feeling exists and the excitement is subsiding. The Assembly will be prorogued for a month and its dissolution is imminent. The Debats to-day says that France has taken a retrograde movement in which the efforts of four years for the advance of the Republic have been lost.

3.30 P. M.—A message from President McMahon just received in the Chamber prorogues the sitting one month.

The Foreign Policy

PARIS, May 18. President McMahon has written a letter to DeCases stating that circumstances did not permit him to entrust the power with the former Cabinet. He announces that there will be no change in the foreign policy and closes by begging DeCases to retain his portfolio.

A Conspiracy for Office

LONDON, May 18. The Times' Paris correspondent says: Those who have brought about the crisis are not engaged in a conspiracy of any sort. Their conspiracy is simply one for office, and have justified beforehand the inevitable revenge which universal suffrage and popular indignation are preparing for them.

McMahon's Message

VERSAILLES, May 18—3.30 P. M. A message from President McMahon has just been read in both Chambers. The President explains that he scrupulously conformed to the constitutional Dufaure and Simon Cabinets chosen in accord with the majority but they were unable to unite sufficient support to guarantee good government. The President continues: I could not make a further step in the same path without making an appeal to the Radical factions which desire a modification of our institutions. My conscience and patriotism do not permit me to associate myself with the triumph of these ideas, which can only result in disorder and the humiliation of France.

As long as I retain the depository power I shall use it with in legal limits to prevent such result which would be ruin to the country. The triumph of such theories was not contemplated when at least the election of all candidates availed themselves of my name. If the country were now interrogated it would reject such a construction. I am firmly resolved to respect and maintain existing institutions until 1880. I might propose modifications, but I propose nothing of the kind. In order to allow emotions to calm I invite you to suspend the sittings one month. You can then discuss the budget.

Meantime we shall maintain public peace, suffer nothing at home to compromise it and notwithstanding the agitation in a portion of Europe, I am confident we shall maintain it abroad, thanks to our good relations with all the powers and our policy of neutrality and abstention. On this point all parties are agreed and the new Cabinet thinks like the old that if any imprudence and utterance on the part of the press threatens to compromise the concord we all desire, I shall repress it by all legal means. To prevent this, however, I appeal to that patriotism which is lacking in no class in France.

The Tone of the Press

PARIS, May 18. Special to New York Telegram—The newspapers this forenoon express the opinion freely as to the political crisis. They unite in denouncing the unparliamentary manner both in conception and delivery of Marshal MacMahon's letter.

On the Verge of a Revolution

Special to Graphic—France is probably trembling on the verge of a revolution. It may either take the form of a coup d'etat by MacMahon, or the seizure of the President by the Republicans and his trial as a traitor to the constitution. The situation is regarded as very grave and Republicans declare that the party of order is now as ever—the party of disorder, that President MacMahon on account of his insolent letter to Premier Simon, is responsible for whatever blood may be shed.

The vote of the Assembly against the Marshal is made up of all the moderate sections as well as the extreme Left, and it is only the extreme Right which supports the pretentions of the Marshal.

The Imperialists are very active. They regard President MacMahon as their man, and are looking for possible bloodshed in the streets of Paris, but as recognized the army is on the side of the President. The Republicans can do nothing but protest.

It is understood that the Marshal believes that a general European war is inevitable and wants a Government which will not be disturbed by parliamentary factions in the great struggle about to begin.

FOREIGN NEWS IN BRIEF.

The correspondent of the N. Y. Sun's London Bureau, a German Pole, expelled on Monday from the Russian army, telegraphs from Vienna that only meagre reports from the Danube are allowed by the Russian staff. Matter by mail is scrutinized and not a line permitted to pass mentioning numbers, disposition or identity of the force. The most exacting conditions are subscribed to by each correspondent upon the back of which is pasted his photograph and a duplicate is left at headquarters. A special aid to the Czar superintends the press corps and to him must be submitted copies of all journals whose representatives are accredited at the Russian headquarters.

In the Russian camp it is believed England and Austria are joined in a coalition to intervene as soon as the decided Russian successes shall endanger their interests.

The New York Times' Bucharest despatch says that eight Turkish soldiers captured near Ibrail were armed with American rifles [illegible] 36 cartridges without reloading. In addition to the charges in the rifle each soldier was provided with 120 rounds of ammunition.

A Berlin despatch says the Russian movement of concentration upon Kars from Poti, Akhaltzik, Alexandropol and Erwin, has come to a stand still a few days march from the frontier. The delay is partly occasioned by the necessity of establishing stores for victualling troops on Turkish soil and partly by the Russian Generals recognizing the change effected in the conditions of warfare by the universal adoption of the needle gun.

A Paris despatch says the Greek policy is still in a state of uncertainty and complications are apprehended from the solution of pending difficulties with Turkey as to some brigands who escaped from prison at Janina and who entered Greece. Greece is augmenting her forces on the frontier.

M. which is as handsomely wrought as one can well be and shows that nothing but a finer use of price results by sending to Boston for such work. The jewel is to be presented to Past Master Clarence I. Dikin and its artistic finish makes it a specially fine present from his "brothers of the mystic tie."

JOHN B. GOUGH. The inclemency of the weather last evening failed to prevent the assembling of quite a large and very select audience in Norombega Hall, to listen to Mr. Gough's lecture on "Peculiar People." To attempt a report or even a synopsis of Mr. Gough's brilliant discourse, would be unjust to the lecturer who is himself, alone, inimitable. With words of burning eloquence he would enchain his audience and then suddenly burst forth with a ludicrous anecdote that would set his hearer into almost uncontrollable fits of laughter. The lecture was one of his most popular efforts, and was full of the laughable anecdotes and mimicry for which he is so famous. He very vividly depicted the "peculiarities" of the various classes of people that one encounters in daily life. He laid great stress on the different virtues and noble qualities of life that we should cultivate and spoke very feelingly to the young men, telling them not to act on the belief that no matter how they began life everything would come out well at the end; but to start right and then by hard work and with the help of God, all would end well. He closed his lecture with a few earnest remarks on temperance and by his eloquence, pathos and rare descriptive power, led his audience by turns from laughter to tears. Mr. Gough proceeds from here to St. John, N. B., and thence to Halifax on his lecturing tour. He is one of the remarkable men of our day and so much of his power is in his manner and personality, that one must see and hear Gough to understand the magnetism of his platform utterances.

EXCITING RUNAWAY. Yesterday afternoon quite an excitement was caused in our streets by two runaway horses owned by Mr. C. P. Dickey and C. A. Reynolds. The latter's horse was standing in front of Messrs. Wheelwright & Clark's store and was startled by the other running past him. It seems that Mr. Dickey's son, a little boy about thirteen years of age, was driving on Union street, when the horse becoming frightened at some boys on the street, started into a run. He went across Clinton street and then came down Hammond street hill. A young boy was sitting in a carriage holding Mr. Reynold's horse, and seeing the team coming down the hill, he jumped from the buggy, leaving his horse alone, who upon seeing the other horse going past, turned and started in the same direction. When opposite Curtis' boot and shoe store, Mr. Reynold's horse collided with Mr. Dickey's team and the result was that a wheel was taken off from Mr. Dickey's carriage. A man standing near caught the horse by the head and the boy was taken from the carriage uninjured. Meanwhile Mr. Reynold's horse continued on his course and turned into Harlow street, where a man succeeded in getting hold of the lines, but was not able to stop the horse. He then ran down Franklin, across Central, up Hammond, and through Columbia streets down on to Main, and from there he went down into Pickering Square, where he cleared himself from the carriage and then proceeded over to Central street, where he was finally captured. The carriage was quite badly broken. It is a wonderful thing that some one was not seriously injured as the streets were full of teams.

MISSIONARY MEETINGS in the Congregational churches of this city will be held to-morrow as follows. In the forenoon Rev. H. M. Storrs, D. D., of New York will preach at the Central church. Rev. J. H. Warren, D. D., of California, will preach at the Hammond st. church and Rev. I. H. Cobb, of Minnesota will preach at the First church. In the afternoon at 3½ o'clock, a union Sabbath school meeting will be held in the Hammond st. church to be addressed by Secretary Storrs and Superintendents Warren and Cobb of the A. H. M. Society. At 7 o'clock in the evening there will be a mass meeting at the Central church, to be addressed by Secretary Storrs and Superintendents Warren and Cobb.

RESOLUTIONS. The government of the Handel Association met at the rooms of Mr. Moody, on Main street yesterday afternoon, at five o'clock, and the following preamble and resolutions were adopted.

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father in His infinite goodness and wisdom, to deprive us suddenly of our beloved President, Dr. James C. Weston, therefore be it

Resolved, That for efficiency in the discharge of his duties as President and for his interest in the welfare of this Association he has always been eminently conspicuous, and that our present success and high standing are in a great measure due to his untiring efforts and wise counsel.

Resolved, That his sudden departure has [illegible] in the harmony of our existence as a musical society, and left a void that cannot be filled.

Resolved, That we cherish with the most heartfelt esteem the memory of his life among us, his noble example, his kindly words and ready sympathy, and while we deeply mourn his loss as a man, an officer and a personal friend, we will strive to be influenced by those virtues which have made his life such a true success, and his death so great a blow to the community in which he lived.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be presented to the bereaved family for whom we have the most profound sympathy.

Resolutions of Respect

At a special meeting of the Trustees of the Penobscot Musical Association held in Bangor, May 18, 1877, called in reference to the death of Dr. James Chase Weston, which took place in this city Thursday, the following minutes were adopted.

We desire to bear our testimony to the interest Dr. Weston has ever taken as a member of this Association since 1861 and as our associate in the Board of Trustees since 1874 and to the constancy and fidelity with which he has fulfilled the duties of the office.

We cherish with tender and grateful remembrance his kind and genial manners, his love for the promotion of true musical taste and his patient and unwearied perseverance in endeavoring to develop and encourage musical [illegible]

We tender to his family our sincere sympathy in this hour of their bereavement and as a token of our regard and respect will attend the funeral services this afternoon.

CHARLESTOWN, Mass., March 25, 1876.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir,—The following is a statement of my experience with the great Blood Remedy, Vegetine. I have been keeping a boarding house here for many years and have had the misfortune to have a great deal of sickness in my family. In one case in particular I noticed the wonderful effect of Vegetine.

About the year 1867 a young man, then sixteen years old, who was a distant relative of mine came home from sea. He had injured his left leg on board the ship some months before, and when the ship came into this port he came to my house being so feeble that he could not go to his home in Lowell. His leg was swollen above the knee more than twice its natural size, and he was obliged to drag it along after him, having no use of it whatever. The effect of this had reduced him to a mere skeleton. His friends sent down and employed Dr. George Hayward of Boston to attend him, who then [illegible] pronounced it the disease of Necrosis [illegible] hospital [illegible] his leg opened and the bone [illegible] discharge of matter [illegible] amputated.

[illegible] CANARIES.—A gentleman residing at Phoenixville, says the [illegible] of Queensland, Australia, has several very [illegible] birds to which he has given much attention. One of the birds he has taught to sing "Home Sweet Home," clearly and distinctly. His mode of instruction is as follows. He placed the [illegible] in a room where it could not hear the singing of other birds, and suspended [illegible] from the ceiling, so that the bird could see its reflection in a mirror. Beneath the glass he placed a musical box that was regulated to play no other tune but "Home Sweet Home." Hearing no other sounds but this, and believing the music proceeded from the bird he saw in the mirror, the young canary soon began to catch the notes, and finally accomplished what its owner had been laboring to attain—that of singing the song perfectly. This is an experiment easily tried, and one we should be glad to know the result of from some of our own bird fanciers, if they make the experiment.

[illegible]—The successful farmer is he who is always careful in selecting his seeds, uses good judgment in breeding stock, keeps his farm free from weeds, always has his fences in good order, and takes good care of his tools, keeps out of debt and has a contented mind, sends his children to school and takes one or more good papers, devoted in whole or in part to farm and stock interests. The farmer who never reads is like a machine that is [illegible] wears. He wears himself out, [illegible] his land and dies poor. One good suggestion found in a paper or book is worth to him more than [illegible] [illegible] Somebody knows something you don't. Let your aim be to acquire everything any one can teach you, and it will be money in your purse, brains in your head and influence in your presence.

ENGLISH FARMS.—An English farmer seldom owns the land he works, but rents it from some wealthy landholder for a term of years, paying as a rental what would be considered by us a very large price. This manner of renting also demands a large capital to enable him to work the farm to the best advantage, in order that the rent and taxes may be paid [illegible] supported and something laid by for future use. This capital is largely used in draining land. The little island of Jersey—not larger than two of our towns—from which the celebrated cows of that name are brought, is densely inhabited, containing a population equal to two persons to every acre of land. The farms are small, containing from two to sixty acres each, and they are rented at from twenty-five to forty-five dollars per acre. This is quite remarkable, and shows what can be done on very small farms if they are well managed.

LIME DUST.—The following has been recommended as the best mode for preparing lime dust for slugs and other insects, for mildew, etc.: Take say a peck of fresh or sharp lime, broken up into small pieces, then add four pounds of flour of sulphur, or in like proportions if in smaller quantity. Add one third as much boiling water, or just enough to slack the lime to dry powder, and cover the vessel as soon as the water is poured on. By adding water, it may be made into an excellent whitewash for trees, the sulphur increasing its efficacy.

We measure a man's strength by the power of the feelings he subdues, not by the power of those which subdue him. And hence, composure is often the highest result of strength. Did we ever see a man receive a flagrant injury, and then reply calmly? That is a man spiritually strong. Or did we ever see a man in anguish, stand as if carved out of solid rock, mastering himself? Or one bearing a hopeless daily trial remain silent and never tell the world what it cankered his home peace? That is strength. We too often mistake strong feelings for strong character. A man who bears all before him, before whose frown domestics tremble, and whose bursts of fury make the children of the household quake because he has his way in all things, we call him a strong man. The truth is, that he is a weak man; it is his passions that are strong: he mastered by them, is weak.

"My friends," said a returned missionary, at an anniversary meeting, "let us avoid sectarian bitterness. The inhabitants of Hindostan, where I have been laboring for many years, have a proverb that, though you bathe a dog's tail in oil and bind it in splints, yet you cannot get the crook out of it. Now a man's sectarian bias is simply the crook in the dog's tail, which cannot be eradicated, and I hold that every one should be allowed to wag his own peculiarly in peace."

A safety-envelope to prevent tampering has been devised. On the flap the words "Attempt to open" are printed with a double set of chemicals, the first impression containing nutgalls and the second green vitriol. If the flap be steamed or moistened in any way the magic printing will appear.

A worthy Quaker thus wrote: "I expect to pass through this world but once; if therefore there be any kindness I can show, or any good thing I can do to any human being, let me do it now. Let me not defer or neglect it, for I shall not pass this way again."

It is wonderful that five thousand years have now elapsed since the creation of the world, and still it is undecided whether or not there has ever been an instance of any person appearing after death. All argument is against it but all belief is for it.

The habit of being always employed is a great safeguard through life, as well as essential to the culture of virtue.

It shocks me to think how much mischief almost every man may do, who will but resolve to do all he can. [Sterne.
